p2pnet news view TV:- As a long-time paying subscriber to PC World, I look forward to my monthly hard copy edition arriving in the mail. I often find the articles and reviews of gadgets and technology interesting and informative. But once in a while, PC World online comes out with a real gem that needs to be shot down quickly. Dan Tynan, a writer for PC World, this month endeavors to expound on the virtues of watching TV on a PC, trying (miserably) to convince his readers to cancel their

Must have products for Road Trips Summer 2008

Even though the gas prices are high, our nation just loves road tripping, and there is no question about it - the highways will be full of vacationers this summer too. Our family has done quite a few long road trips. We have driven to Orlando, Florida to visit Mickey Mouse and seen Niagara Falls on the Canadian side. We've driven the coast from Florida to Texas, and seen the scenes of old route 66. We've been to Cape Cod and driven the mountain roads of Colorado. Not to even mention that we've

Sony To Launch PS3 Movie Service This Summer

I'll be one of the first to jump on the "I like video marketplace downloads" train. I hate having to drive to block buster to rent a film, then there is the additional hassle of paying the inevitable $10+ in late fees because either I forgot to return the disk or it is sitting in the back seat of someone's car as they promised to drop it off on their way home... I'm getting off track here. Point of the matter is that the Playstation 3 is getting a video store this summer. The service is set
